

IN MOTION

MORRIS COUNTY'S TRANSPORTATION FUTURE

The Morris County Department of Planning and Public Works is developing a new Circulation Element of the Morris County Master Plan. This new transportation plan, "Morris County in Motion," will look at how people and goods move by car, truck, bus, train, bicycle, and by foot, now and in the future. This project is funded with a grant from the North Jersey Transportation Planning Authority.

This project has started and will conclude in May 2016 with the adoption of the Circulation Element by the Morris County Planning Board. As part of this project, we are reviewing municipal and regional plans to understand our communities' priorities. We are also looking to the future in order to explore the potential impacts of changes in demographics, advances in technology, and other trends in Morris County. The results of the study will help Morris County prioritize transportation investments, shape policies, and develop a framework for a safe and efficient transportation network.

To help us create this plan, municipal and public input is important. There are several different ways for municipalities and the public to participate in the plan's development. One simple method will be to use the project's MindMixer webpage, MorrisCounty.MindMixer.com, which will allow residents, businesses, and other stakeholders to share their thoughts and engage in surveys throughout the project.

There will be two series of public workshops that will be held in the spring and fall of 2015. The first series will be used to identify transportation issues affecting Morris County communities. At the second series, we will solicit input on the plan's proposed strategies and recommendations.

Everyone can visit the project webpage www.MorrisCountyInMotion.org for announcements and to read all of the plan's reports. You can also follow the progress of the plan on the County's Facebook and Twitter pages. Any comments or ideas can also be emailed to mcdot@co.morris.nj.us or mailed to our County office.
